RON "PAPA JACK" JACKSON

Also known as the "Hit Doctor" is a former hitting coach for the Boston Red Sox-2004 World Series Champions and former Major League baseball player. Papa Jack began to play baseball at age 7 in Powderly Hills and was drafted by The California Angels in his senior year at Wenonah High School. His career includes league play with the Minnesota Twins Detroit Tigers and Baltimore Orioles. Because of his extensive community involvement he was named "BoSox Man of the Year" in 2003,
